2004 - 2009
University of Pittsburgh

2009 - 2014
University of Pittsburgh

The RERC is dedicated developing methods for providing telerehabilitation service and evaluating their effectiveness.
RERC-TR2 Outcome Goals

- Develop and apply informatics tools for use in health care settings and natural environments that will advance knowledge of design requirements and result in an integrated telerehabilitation system incorporating scalability, flexibility, accessibility, security, and cost-effectiveness.

RERC on Telerehabilitation at RST Department of Rehabilitation Science and Technology at School of Health and Rehabilitation Sciences, University of Pittsburgh

RERC-TR2 Outcome Goals

- Establish evidenced-based practice of telerehabilitation for clinical and vocational rehabilitation, leading to increased capacity for remote assessment, treatment and monitoring where people live, work and play.
RERC-TR2 Outcome Goals

- Improve rehabilitation outcomes through adoption of TR technologies to extend and enhance clinical practice, naturalistic intervention and self-management and support for individuals with disabilities.
- Increase capacity to conduct telerehabilitation research through the adoption of uniform outcome indicators.

Introduction and Overview

- VISYTER
- Conference format
- Today's Topic: Telerehabilitation Technology Usability: Lessons Learned and Future Directions
- Conference Program and PowerPoint handouts are available from the website: www.rerctr.pitt.edu/sos/.
